

Take SANATOGEN—then you will not feel so "nervy"

Weak nerves are starved nerves. Not dangerous yet, but a condition which usually becomes worse unless something is done.

Sanatogen feeds the nerves and thus strengthens them in a perfectly natural way.

Give your nerves Sanatogen and that tired "nervy" feeling will disappear entirely. That listlessness, those sleepless nights and lack of appetite—all symptoms of weakened nerves—will soon be forgotten. You will feel healthy again and ten years younger. Fresh red blood will flow through your veins, putting rosiness into your cheeks and bringing a sparkle into your eyes.

COMMISSIONER ACCEPTS KEYS

Historic Ceremony At Holyroodhouse

COLOURFUL PAGEANTRY SCENES

London, May 17. The Throne Room of the Palace of Holyroodhouse was the setting last night for the picturesque ceremony associated with the traditional presentation to the Lord High Commissioner of the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland of the city keys.

In ceremonial attire the Lord Provost (Mr. Louis S. Gurnley), the City Treasurer, the Town Clerk, the City Chamberlain, and their attendants, the city halberdiers and sword and mace-bearer, proceeded to the Throne Room to await the coming of the Commissioner.

A fanfare of trumpets announced the Lord High Commissioner's approach, and then from the courtyard below "God save the King" was played by the band of the 2nd Battalion the Black Watch.

The keys, carried on a plush cushion by the City Chamberlain, were presented by the Lord Provost to Lord Kinnaid.

The Lord Provost presenting the keys, said:—

"We, the magistrates of this city, have the honour to attend your Grace as representing our most gracious Sovereign the King."

ASSURANCE OF DEVOTION

"We give you the assurance of our loyal and devoted attachment to His Majesty's person, Throne, and Government, and in token thereof I deliver to you the keys of His Majesty's good town of Edinburgh, the Capital of Scotland."

"We congratulate your Grace on being appointed to the high office of the Sovereign's Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, and we offer you and Her Grace a most hearty welcome to this ancient city."

LORD KINNAID'S REPLY

The Lord High Commissioner, in reply, said:—

"My Lord Provost and gentlemen.—On behalf of His Majesty the King, whom I have the honour to represent, I accept these keys as the symbol of possession of the good town of Edinburgh."

"I hear with great pleasure and shall, without fail, convey, to His Majesty your assurance of devotion to His Majesty's person, Throne, and Government. For the kind words you have spoken to us and for the warm welcome which you have given us I, on behalf of my wife and myself, thank you, my Lord Provost."

"It is a very great honour which His Majesty the King has conferred on us by appointing me to represent him as his High Commissioner. It has given us very keen delight to have so many proofs of good will and kindness from our fellow-countrymen."

DELIGHT IN FRIENDLY WELCOME

"That delight has been heightened by your frank and friendly welcome to this ancient city which so worthily upholds the honour and dignity of the Capital of our beloved country."

"On our part we will do everything in our power to strengthen those feelings of esteem and regard which you, my Lord Provost, and always so willingly and so generously given to those who, like myself, have had the honour of representing the King."

"And now, sir, I gladly return to you the keys of your city, knowing as I do full well that they could not be in safer and more trustworthy keeping."

GOSSIP FROM HOME

Mail News Of The Week

London, May 22. Towards the close of the life of the last Parliament those who were urging the reform of the House of Lords were given a sort of half promise that, if the National Government was returned to power, this would be one of the problems that would be tackled writes a correspondent. No indication was given as to when the matter would be taken up, but the Joint Committee of the two Houses has once more begun to press for action. Mr Baldwin has been approached, and I learn to-night that he has indicated his willingness to receive a deputation next month, the actual date of the meeting being left to his own convenience. Those M.P.s and Peers who are in the movement are anxious to secure definite results soon, so that the Upper Chamber will be bulwarked against attacks by a possible Labour Government.

WITHOUT THE DUCES KNOWLEDGE

Little surprise will be occasioned if the sequel to the exposure of the dudum bull affair is the withdrawal of Col. Umberto Mondadori, the Italian Military Attaché.

It appears that while the negotiations between Col. Mondadori and "Pedro Lopez" were known in a certain department in Rome, they were carried on without the knowledge of Signor Grandi or the Duce.

The Duce was I understand, highly incensed by the misplaced zeal of his would-be propagandist, and gave instant effect to Signor Grandi's demand for the withdrawal of the Italian memorandum.

DEVALUATION

When inflation comes in France—and most people there believe it must come—it will be accompanied by the denial that it is inflation. The process will be termed "devaluation." The effect will be the same whatever the name.

Those French political sections which are working for devaluation have already fixed their objective in definite terms. They concentrate on securing a reduction, in the value of the franc in relation, to gold amounting to 30 per cent. below the present parity.

BANK NOTE OMISSION

To a foreigner unacquainted with the English language a note of the Bank of England is an uncommunicative document. For the note, curiously enough, does not bear on it a statement of its value in figures.

Now that the demand for these British notes in Paris is brisk, this lack of information causes so much delay and confusion that the clerks in some of the banks are forced to write in pencil on each note its denomination in figures.

USING THE ESCALATOR CLAUSE

The Prime Minister's carefully-guarded statement in the House of Commons yesterday on the escalator clause in the existing Naval Treaty is the first intimation that the Government is taking steps to invoke that way of escape from any element in the position which "materially affected the requirements of national security." It has been urged on the Government for some months past that our position is unsatisfactory owing to the failure of France and Italy to ratify the treaty and consequently to be bound by its restrictions.

The total of 339,000 tons allowed to us for cruisers has kept us below even the complement of fifty cruisers which was envisaged by the treaty because, as Lord Montagu explained in Parliament, we were faced with the necessity under recent programmes, of building three ships of 9,000 tons each instead of four of the smaller 8,500 ton type which we favour.

It was announced also the other day that we should be compelled to scrap five small cruisers this year in order to retain three of the Hawkins class, thus again lowering our total number, though remaining within the tonnage allowance. The Government's policy now is to raise our total of cruisers to the seventy which Lord Jellicoe and Lord Beatty both advised the previous Governments was the lowest limit of safety for commerce defence, and it is fairly obvious that this cannot be achieved by reducing our existing 49 vessels by way of a start.

IMPERIAL AIRWAYS
Sir Philip Sassoon was able to parade a strong array of facts in justification of the Government's civil air policy in the House of Commons yesterday, and those who are not satisfied with the theory ought to be impressed by the figures. It is possible to argue that British policy might be more aggressive, but there is no question that it has produced services which are cheaper to the country and safer, more dependable, and more comfortable than are to be found elsewhere. It is odd to find Labour demanding nationalisation when another of their ideas—international control—could be much more convincingly argued.

CHURCH OF SCOTLAND AND THE QUEEN MARY

Publicity has been given to the fact that facilities are to be provided on board the Queen Mary for religious services of various kinds. A Jewish synagogue was consecrated the other day. The Roman Catholic Church is to be enabled to celebrate Mass, and the Anglican Church Holy Communion. To the Church of Scotland also opportunity is to be afforded for the observance of Communion according to its own rite when a minister in Presbyterian orders is on board the ship.

DEDICATING THE COMMUNION VESSELS

The General Administration Committee, in name of the Church, has arranged to present Communion vessels (two cups and two patens), vestments, fine linen, and other necessary articles, with a cabinet to contain them when not in use. Before these are despatched within the next few days to Southampton the Communion vessels are to be dedicated, and this will be done by the Moderator in St. Giles' Cathedral this morning at the close of the General Assembly's Communion service.

CHINA INLAND MISSION

Anniversary Services In Glasgow

A number of services were held in Glasgow churches to mark the 71st anniversary of the China Inland Mission, and recently two public meetings were held in Renfield Street Church.

The Rev. Dr. Arthur Taylor, preaching in Langside Church said that while he was in no way minimising the difficulties in China, progress was being made in the country. During the last decade 60,000 miles of road had been constructed, while 40,000 more were under construction. Miles of railway had been laid down, and, furthermore, 8 to 10 aeroplane services were now in operation so that one could cross China within a couple of days, whereas, several years ago the journey took two months.

The Chinese Government, Dr. Taylor added, was spending something like 20,000,000 Mexican dollars per year on 10,000 Chinese students who were being educated abroad.

As evidence of the progress of Christianity the Chinese Inland Mission last year baptised 8000 converts, and the activities of the Mission would have been considerably more but for the invasion of the "Reds" in different parts of the country.

The income of the mission last year, he said, was the second largest in the history of the work.

ROYAL ACADEMY SALES

London. Half-a-dozen pictures have been sold at the private view of the Royal Academy. One was Mr. Frank Beresford's painting of the Royal princes on guard at their father's lying-in-state at Westminster Hall.

Royal Academicians are more modest than they used to be in the Victorian heyday of the Academy and the prices are not large. Only Mr. Gerald Brookhurst, and Mr. James Gunn each show a picture for which they have the confidence to ask figures.

The dun-coloured canvas walls put up for the Chinese Exhibition show up the sculpture well. This section was arranged by Sir William Reid Dick, and is not too crowded, since more than 800 sculpture exhibits were rejected. A giant Lord Willington watches visitors as they enter, and a giant John Wesley beckons to him wistfully from the corner.

THE BATTLESHIP CONTROVERSY

Estimate To Come Up For Discussion Soon

London. When the £10,000,000 Supplementary Estimate for the navy comes up in the House of Commons Sir Francis Adland will move on behalf of the Liberal Parliamentary party to reduce the sum by £405,750. This is the amount to be spent on account for the two capital ships, and the subject of the Liberals is to urge the folly for spending money on capital ships while there is still hot dispute whether the battleship has any value except as providing a magnificent target for aircraft. Sir Francis will make the further point that this is precisely one of the problems which a genuine method of co-ordinating defence would have settled in advance of the present expenditure.

THE 55,000-TON BATTLESHIP STORY

Naval quarters to-day have been hotly discussing the report from Tokyo that Japan proposes to build a battleship of 55,000 tons, armed with 21-inch guns. Such a vessel would, of course, completely wreck the painfully achieved London Naval Treaty, which sets a maximum displacement of 35,000 tons and limits the guns to 14-inch calibre.

In your columns during the early stages of the recent Naval Conference it was disclosed that the Admiralties of the chief Powers have plans ready drawn for ships up to 37,000 tons. There is nothing technically impossible about the Japanese story, but it comes most strangely after the repeated assertions by Admiral Nagano on behalf of his Government at the Conference that Japan's main object was to get the size of warships considerably reduced—even below the level to which the British proposals would have brought them.

These reiterated assurances, in the most solemn language, led to the expectation that Japan would accept the new limitation of battleship size. The report is the more surprising because Admiral Nagano is now Minister of Marine. If Japan does build 55,000-ton ships all the leading Powers will think that they have to follow suit. With the cost of building approximating to £200 a ton, each battleship would be costing £11,000,000, five times the price of a Queen Elizabeth or a Royal Oak, the designs that fought at Jutland.

FIELD-MARSHAL'S SON MARRIED

London, May 20. The Hon. Patricia Berry caused consternation among both guests and Westminster Abbey officials by being nearly 10 minutes late for her wedding yesterday to Mr. Roger Chetwode, in the Henry VII Chapel at the Abbey.

The explanation was that her car was held up in a big traffic jam.

The bride, who is 20, is the third daughter of Lord and Lady Camrose.

The bridegroom, who is 29, is the only son of Field-Marshal Sir Philip Chetwode and Lady Chetwode. His family were settled in England before the Nan Conquest, and he comes of long line of soldiers. His father completed his term of office as Commander-in-Chief in India last November, and Mr. Chetwode, himself was formerly a Lieutenant in the 22nd (London) Armoured Car Company (Westminster Dragoons).

The service was conducted by the Dean of Westminster (Mr. William Foxley Norris) and the music was provided by the Royal Artillery Band. Lord Herbert was best man.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of chalk white crepe cut on simple lines with a long train, and her white tulle veil was held in position by an unusual headress composed of white lacquered raffia fashioned in a floral design. Instead of a bouquet she carried a small white Prayer Book. She was attended by eight little girls and two small page boys.

The bride and bridegroom and their guests entered and left the Abbey by the West Cloister entrance, and were watched by a large crowd.

After the ceremony a reception was held by the bride's parents at their London home in St. James's Place.

WAR DEBT
PAYMENT

None To Be Made

EXPLANATION
GIVEN

London, June 8.
A White Paper issued in London this evening gives the texts of correspondence between the United States Government and the British Embassy in Washington regarding the British War Debt.

The Department of State addressed a note on May 22 to the British Ambassador transmitting a statement of amounts due half-yearly since June 15, 1933, and including June 15 next, under the Debt agreement of 1923, and the moratorium agreement of 1932, and reiterating the willingness of the United States Government to discuss any proposals the British Government might desire to put forward as to payment.

The statement shows the total amount due on June 15 next to be $85,870,763.

In acknowledging the note and accompanying statement on June 7, Sir Ronald Lindsay said: "His Majesty's Government explained in their note of June 4, 1934, the reasons for which they were reluctantly forced to suspend payments. Those reasons are fortunately no less valid than they were then."

"His Majesty's Government desire me to express their appreciation of your assurance that the United States Government are ready to discuss any proposals in regard to the payment which may be put forward, and I am instructed to assure you in return that His Majesty's Government will be glad to reopen negotiations whenever circumstances are such as to warrant hope that a satisfactory result might be reached."

SOME IMPRESSIONS OF CHINA

Dr. And Mrs. W. G.
Owens Speak To Students

PRAISE FOR UNIVERSITY OF SHANGHAI

Shanghai, June 3.

Dr. and Mrs. W. G. Owens, who have spent the last year with the University of Shanghai, spoke in assembly on Monday morning, telling of some of their impressions of China. Dr. Owens, who is professor of Chemistry in the University of Shanghai, has spent the year teaching chemistry in the University of Shanghai. Mrs. Owens, past 70, China's oldest co-ed, has been doing graduate work in Sociology.

"Ever since about the first two days that I was in China," Dr. Owens said, "people have asked me, 'What do you think of China?' I have found several things quite different from what I have been accustomed to in America. The first thing, we live in a mountainous country, and the queer thing to me is to see an ocean liner sailing among the trees here or to go out into the country and see a big sail moving through the wheat fields and the rice fields. Then I was up on a hill a few weeks ago, and looked down and saw that all the roads as far as I could see were made out of water. That shows that you have a very different country from that which we are accustomed to. Then the crops are very different, and the ways of farming are different. Here you have very small fields, with a man tilling each of them. Where I live, we have very large farms, cultivated by tractor."

He spoke of the differences in the fruits and flowers, the weather, the way in which Chinese cities are laid out, with narrow and winding streets, as contrasted with the broad, straight streets of most American cities.

IMPRESSIVE MAN-POWER

"The thing that impressed me most was the man power," he stated. "Whereas we do things by trucks, horses, mules, and animals, nearly everything is done here by man power. The man power of China is certainly enormous, and you use it for practically everything. That is very different from what we are accustomed to."

Dr. Owens went on to speak of the differences in the people, the Chinese people all having the same colouring, while in America they are all different. In other respects, he said that he found the people very much the same. If anything, the Chinese are more cordial, friendly, and polite.

"Several times I have been asked about the students," he said. "I think they are just the same as American students. There are some that could improve."

"There is one other point, and that is the co-operation which you have shown with your president in the troublous times in which we are living here. That is a very fine thing that the students in this institution have stood by the president and the policy which he is trying to carry out. I think that is the only thing that you can do with any success. I want to congratulate you upon that."

"I am glad to have spent this year with you," he said in closing. "It will always be a happy memory in my life."

POWER TO GET THINGS DONE
Mrs. Owens said that she had been greatly impressed by the power of the Chinese people to get things done. She contrasted the setting of the Bucknell University campus, in the naturally beautiful, wooded hills of America, with the beautiful campus of the University of Shanghai that has been built up during the last thirty years, from the original marsh and mud flats of the river bank.

"I feel that you have the more credit for your beautiful campus than Bucknell has," she said. "I also feel like thanking the men and women who made this university a possibility, because I feel that schools like this are going to be the salvation of China. Every country depends upon its youth for its future, and China must especially depend upon its educated youth for its future."

"You know that service is the one thing to be praised. The more service you can give, the greater you will be. Sun Yat-sen, Lin-

FRANKENSTEINS
OF THE
MAN OF SCIENCE

Discoveries That Degrade Life

SIR RICHARD
GREGORY'S GRAVE
WARNING

London, May 22.

A grave warning of the perils of scientific progress was uttered last night by Sir Richard Gregory, the editor of "Nature," lecturing at the Royal Institution, London, on "Science in a Changing World."

Sir Richard said that many scientific discoveries had not added to the amenities of life, but to its degradation. He urged that it had become the duty of men of science to adjust themselves to the conditions of a changing world, and to take an active part in promoting worthy uses of scientific discoveries and in preventing the application of new forces to purposes of destruction. "Science in a changing world means science adapting itself to the new conditions of life which have resulted from the application of its discoveries, and assisting in the solution of the problems created by them," he said.

SHUNNED BY SOCIETY

"Though the pursuit of natural knowledge must go forward, whatever the consequences, the man of science cannot disregard the social effects of his discoveries. If he creates a Frankenstein monster which becomes the terror of the human race he may himself end in being shunned by civilised society, or his passion for truth be put under control because of the dangers to which it may lead."

Sir Richard said that there could be no question that expenditure on scientific research was a profitable investment. But the greater it became the more urgent was the need to see that it promoted progressive human welfare instead of its degradation.

"Scientific workers," he declared, "have now to pause and consider whether they should be content to let others be responsible for the use or misuse of their contributions to knowledge. It is the duty of men of science to assist in promoting more worthy uses of the new powers they are continually placing in the hands of the community, for otherwise the world seems likely to be reduced to a place of dust and ashes."

TO SAVE CIVILISATION

"The impacts of science with society are now so numerous that scientific studies in the realm of social biology are even more necessary for civilised life than researches in the physical sciences."

Our distributive and economic system remained on the basis of a pre-scientific age, wholly unadjusted to the needs of a changing world and unable to bear the burdens placed upon it by the problems of new and almost incredible abundance.

"A regenerative influence is required to save civilisation from disaster," Sir Richard declared, "and the mission of science in the changing world of to-day should be to introduce it into the field of social biology and thus enable us still to believe in the highest destiny of man."

SCOTLAND AND
NEW INDUSTRY

Sir Godfrey Collins's
Plea

DEVELOPMENT ON BIG SCALE

London.
Sir Godfrey Collins, Secretary of State for Scotland, in a reference to the new Economic Committee for Scotland at a combined meeting of Greenock Liberal and Unionist Associations in the Temperance Institute, Greenock, said that he was specially interested in the possibility of securing for Scotland a due share of the higher industries to supplement the heavy industries.

He felt that until we had developed the new and lighter industries on a considerable scale the economic problem of Scotland would continue to warrant serious concern.

Ex-Provost Baxter, president of the Liberal Association, presided at the meeting.

Sir Godfrey Collins, in a reference at the outset to the Budget, said that because of the urgent need for replacing our weakened defences and safeguarding ourselves in what we had learned, rather painfully, to be a turbulent world, the Chancellor of the Exchequer had to raise an additional £20,000,000.

Even after raising that sum, there was still a balance of taxation remitted of £30,000,000 since 1931.

Few people quarrelled with the fact that the additional sum must be raised. The only question that arose was whether it was raised in the fairest possible way, and on that point he did not think there could be any doubt that the Chancellor of the Exchequer had dealt fairly as between the direct and the indirect taxpayer.

of free schools for the poor people. This, she felt, would be the greatest bit of service that the educated young people of China could render for their country.—(N.C.D.N.)

THE DARWIN STAMP

London, May 17.
I have just received the set of six Ecuador stamps issued to commemorate the centenary of Darwin's visit to the Galapagos Islands writes a collector.

The islands, which lie some six hundred miles from the South American mainland, are famous for their peculiar flora and fauna, for 98 per cent of the reptiles, 43 per cent of the plants, and 37 per cent of the shore fish are found nowhere else in the world.

The islands fascinated Darwin, who spent September and October of 1835 there, and greatly influenced the development of his theory of the origin of species.

THE BEAGLE

Of the six stamps which form the set, two have geographical designs and show a map of the archipelago and a picture of the islands.
The five centavos stamp shows the unique marine iguana and the ten centavos the famous giant tortoise (Spanish galapago) from which the islands take their name.

Although he never visited the islands, Columbus appears in the one sucre stamp.

Darwin himself, with a small picture of H.M.S. Beagle, appears on the 20 centavos stamp, illustrated here.

THIS MYSTERIOUS UNIVERSE

First Description Of The Great Telescope Now Under Construction In America

MIRROR TO BE THREE YEARS IN THE MAKING

Pasadena, California.

I have just seen the largest glass disc in the world. It weighs 40 tons and measures nearly 17 feet in diameter. It is probably the most important piece of glass ever moulded, for it may reveal secrets of the universe hitherto hidden from the eyes of man, writes a correspondent.

Within four years, this mammoth slab of fused quartz will be transformed into a 200-inch mirror for a mighty telescope, twice as large as the present largest at the Mount Wilson Observatory at Pasadena, California. The disc, has just arrived from New York, where it was moulded, and now rests in the optical laboratories of the California Institute of Technology at Pasadena. For more than three years it will be ground, polished, and tested with painstaking care. It will then be taken 85 miles by road up a lofty mountain nearly 5000 feet in elevation to its final home on Mount Palomar, California, there to begin its scrutiny of astronomical mysteries unsolvable with present telescopes.

ANDREW CARNEGIE AND
MOUNT WILSON

Yet all this might have been impossible had not a poor Scottish lad left his home in 1848 to try his luck in the United States. That boy was Andrew Carnegie, whose great wealth established and maintains the important astronomical work at Mount Wilson Observatory, without which the 200-inch reflector could hardly have been possible. Although money for the new telescope, is being supplied by the Rockefeller endowment, technical advice and active co-operation is being given by astronomers at the Mount Wilson Observatory.

Perhaps it was because a Scot had made possible the work at Mount Wilson that I was able to obtain for "The Glasgow Herald" the first official photographs of the 200-inch mirror, taken in the California Institute laboratories by Ferdinand Ellerman, photographic specialist of Mount Wilson Observatory. "The Glasgow Herald" is able to publish the first and only official sketch of the gigantic telescope as it will appear when completed. The sketch was drawn by Russell W. Porter, California Institute Associate and specialist in optical and instrumental design.

DR. EDWIN HUBBLE'S VISIT

I have just been informed by John A. Anderson, executive officer of California Institute Observatory Council, who is supervising the construction of the new telescope, that Sir James Jeans and Sir Arthur Eddington, the eminent physicists, are expected to visit California to inspect the work on the giant reflector. Sir James is a research associate of Mount Wilson Observatory, and both he and Sir Arthur have visited Mount Wilson previously.

British scientists probably will hear full details of the construction of the telescope when Dr. Edwin Hubble, the noted American astronomer and associate of Mount Wilson Observatory, lectures at Oxford this summer. Dr. Hubble was one of the first Rhodes Scholars. Dr. Anderson told me Dr. Hubble has high hopes that the new telescope will reveal important scientific data in connection with the "expansion of the universe" theory. This astronomical investigation will be carried on probably with the aid of a special spectroscopic lens recently designed by the British Scientific Instrument Research Association.

MOUNT PALOMAR

The observatory on Mount Palomar and the gigantic mounting for the mirror will be completed at least a year before the mirror is ready, Dr. Anderson told me. This to allow for complete check of the elaborate and delicate instruments. So great is the need for accuracy in astronomical observations that the new telescope's mounting will be rigid and massive enough to bear the weight of an observer in a small chamber at the upper end of the tube. This chamber will have a regulated temperature so that the observation work will not be affected even by the heat from the observer's body.

I asked Dr. Anderson why Mount Palomar was chosen as the site for the telescope. He informed me that the mountain, compared with Mount Wilson, is equally free from fog and has an equal number of clear nights during the year, but has the additional advantage of being far from any large city. The reflection from the myriad lights and dust of Los Angeles, 15 miles away, he explained, interferes with observation of the southern skies by the 100-inch reflector on Mount Wilson.

"Won't it be inconvenient to travel 85 miles from your headquarters in Pasadena every time you visit the observatory?" I asked him.

"Yes, that is a handicap," he answered, "but I don't think it will be long before we are using aeroplanes to fly back and forth. We have a landing field planned at Mount Palomar to meet this difficulty, and I don't believe it will be very many years before we astronomers will be using the sky for travel as well as for observation."

When in 1940 this "Queen Mary" of telescopes begins her voyages through the oceans of space the scientific world will follow its journeys with an interest transcending all national boundaries. Accustomed to gazing upward at the glory of the stars, seeking ever to probe further into the vast depths of the universe, astronomers and physicists will await news of what lies in celestial regions 1,200,000,000 light years distant with an eagerness dwarfing the "sturm und drang" of this tiny planet's political confusions.

Nor will the common man, to whom abstract mathematics and astronomy must remain ever mysterious, escape the consequences of this telescopic Columbus. Galileo's speculations, Newton's discoveries, and Einstein's theories did not fail to affect the very life and thought of their generations.

Religion and philosophy have been influenced profoundly by the observations of science. Ministers in the pulpits of Glasgow a generation hence may be referring to statistics unwearingly gleaned upon the California mountain top, for, under the leadership of such men as Sir James Jeans, science is turning its back on a mere mechanistic explanation of the universe and is kneeling humbly before a new and divine uncertainty, the command of which is: "Let there be Light."

The Charlie Chan code of fair play has been broken! But Chan followers need not feel hurt for not only is the transgression a minor one, but a beneficial one. The code of fair play, which was drawn up by the 20th Century-Fox studio executives four years ago, has been maintained consistently throughout Warner Oland's ten previous screen characterizations as the famous fictional detective.

The code insisted, among other things, that the audience be given an equal opportunity with Chan to solve the murder in each case; that no police officer could be the murderer and that physical clues only should lead to the solution of the crime. To insure a fresh viewpoint, it was decreed that each different picture should be plotted and written by different writers. And that is where the code was broken.

Charlie had solved baffling mysteries all over the world in Paris, Egypt, Shanghai and San Francisco he had used nearly all the approved modes of scientific criminal detection; he had cleared innocent suspects; reunited lovers and put guilty men behind bars. But in "Charlie Chan at the Circus," the new Fox thriller, which comes to-day to the King's Theatre, there is a completely new background the big top with a new type of murderer and new clues leading to the culprit. The traditional characters of screen mystery are replaced by colourful circus folk.

In addition to Warner Oland, who portrays the title role, the supporting cast includes Keye Luke, George and Olive Branno, Francis Ford, Maxine Rieker, John McGuire, Shirley Deane, Paul Stanton and J. Carroll Naish.

I FOUND STELLA PARISH

Kay Francis, supported by a talented cast, comes to the Queen's Theatre shortly in the First National production "I Found Stella Parish."

The film is based on a powerful drama by John Monk Saunders. Miss Francis has the intensely emotional role of a woman who topples from the heights of success to the depths of despair.

Fighting to hide a terrible page in her life in order to protect her six-year-old daughter from scandal, she is betrayed by the man she has come to love, and started her on the downward path in her profession.

Separated from her child whom she has placed in hiding with a faithful retainer, her love turned to bitter hatred, she is torn by a terrific emotional stress that eats into her heart and makes her life a horrible nightmare.

The battle of the young journalist, the young man who had published the story of her life after having won her confidence, to bring back her success and make up for the injustice he had done her leads to an astounding and intensely dramatic climax.

Tan Hunter the English stage and film star, has the role of the journalist, with Paul Lukas playing the part of the actress' theatrical manager and suitor of the time she had attained the pinnacle of success. Sybil Jason, the clever child actress is seen as Miss Francis' daughter. Jessie Lloyd has the role of the child's nurse and Barton MacLane is the blackmailing husband.

BEHIND THE SCREEN IN HOLLYWOOD

What The Stars And Executives Are Doing

"Director of 'Thing' to Come Leaves London for New York;" "Director of 'Ghost Goes West' Leaves New York for Paris;" "Samuel Goldwyn, with Mrs. Goldwyn and Young Son, Leave Hollywood for New York. Thence to London;" "Miriam Hopkins Returns to Hollywood After Brief Vacation in Mexico;" "Mary Pickford Flies from Hollywood to New York;" "Freddie Bartholomew and His Aunt Entrain from Hollywood to New York;" "Dolores Costello Flies Across Country from Hollywood to Warm Springs, Georgia, for Special Premiere of 'Little Lord Fauntleroy';" "Douglas Fairbanks Flies to New York; Sails to Paris;" "Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Arrives in New York from London; Flies to Hollywood with His Dad and Flies Back to New York again."

DOUG JR.

Let's take a look at Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. This energetic son of a very energetic dad recently completed his first picture as a producer, "The Amateur Gentleman," co-starring Elissa Landi, which will be released through United Artists, and one of the first things he did upon arriving in New York was to hold open house for the correspondents of the United States and International press. Speaking frankly, Young Doug spiked a few rumours about his personal affairs and told something about his plans.

"The reports of my engagement to anybody are untrue. My rumoured engagement to Elissa Landi is ridiculous, as she herself will tell you. Why I still call her 'Miss Landi'."

"I did not desert Hollywood. That's all rot. Why, if I am being unfaithful to Hollywood by making my pictures in England, then Leslie Howard, Merle Oberon, Ronald Colman and the rest of them must be deserters of England."

"It was no go in Hollywood," he confessed, "being a star one year and a nobody the next and then a star again—depending on parts and grosses. So I turned down all American picture offers for two years and stayed in London, pounding away at my ideas and ideals. And eventually a group of people saw things my way and we organized a producing company."

"HELL-SHIP MORGAN"

Colourful and impressive, Columbia's "Hell-Ship Morgan," featuring George Bancroft, Ann Sothern and Victor Jory, which opens to-day at the Alhambra Theatre, is a roaring and powerful tale of the sea and the men who earn their livelihood from the deep.

George Bancroft is cast as brawny Captain Ira Morgan, master of the tuna fishing ship "Southern Cross," a man who always gets what he wants by right of might. This type of role is perfectly suited to the powerful and robust Bancroft and his performance in "Hell-Ship Morgan" is undoubtedly the best he has offered motion picture fans since "Underworld."

Ann Sothern plays the part of Mary Taylor, a penniless girl whom the hard-as-nails Morgan marries and brings aboard his ship, the "Southern Cross," to live.

It is around Mary Taylor that the plot of "Hell-Ship Morgan" revolves for Mary realizes soon after her marriage that she only married Morgan out of a sense of loyalty. Later she falls in love with Jim Allen, played by handsome Victor Jory, first mate of the "Southern Cross."

The scenes at sea are particularly impressive, and magnificent shots of the "Southern Cross" battling her way through heavy seas are high points in the photography, which is outstanding throughout.

Bancroft, who fears no man, and proves it when, as master of his ship, he quells his mutinous crew, is remarkable. Ann Sothern's performance is capable and refreshing while Victor Jory gives his usual excellent portrayal. Included in the fine supporting cast are George Regas, Rolin Lloyd, Howard Hickman and Ralph Byrd. D. Ross Lederman directed.

NO DIFFERENCE

"After all, does it make any difference where a picture is actually filmed when it is going to a world-wide public? It certainly does not! All that does matter is: Is it a good picture? Has everybody associated with it given his best to the film? And that's what I'm sure we're doing—and have done with 'The Amateur Gentleman.' Listen, there's a fight scene in it that put me to bed for three days afterwards with sore muscles and a swollen jaw. I'll say it's real!"

Of his romantic young life (he's only twenty-seven now) Fairbanks said: "I've been too busy for any, really. I'm not one to shy the ladies away. But I've put my heart and soul and all my time and money into this new venture. No—I've too much to do at present to think of romance."

Young Doug revealed that his production company will make four pictures next season, one of them to be a tale about King Arthur's Round Table.

GOLDWYN INTERVIEWED

When the members of the press interviewed Samuel Goldwyn on the eve of his recent departure for London, he revealed a little human interest anecdote in connection with "Hurricane," another of his forthcoming productions, the story of which appeared serially in the Saturday Evening Post, one of the foremost weekly magazines of the United States.

"According to Goldwyn, the editors of the Post recently received the following letter: 'I am going to leave next week, and where I am going I cannot tell the Post. I am very much interested in the story, 'Hurricane,' and I will appreciate it very much if you could send me proofs so that I can finish reading it before I go.'"

This letter was handwritten, dated January 8, and signed Miller F. Clark. The Post sent him proofs of the last installments of "Hurricane." On January 12, Clark died in the electric chair of Charleston State Prison for murder!

Charming June Travis who has the feminine lead with James Cagney and Pat O'Brien in the Cosmopolitan production "Ceiling Zero" at the Queen's Theatre, is a new-comer to the screen, but critics hail her as a "find" judging by her work in this film.

SONJA WANTS £60,000

Hollywood magnates accustomed to paying big money are gasping over the sum skater Sonja Henie suggests she should receive as a film star.

£60,000 for one picture is what she asks!

Sonja is still discussing terms with Paramount, while there's a contract in the air with M.G.M. Hollywood is captivated by her looks, personality—and skating—but £2,000 a day is too steep even for Sam Goldwyn!

Experts believe she is "typed," and would be good for only one picture. If true, this means that Sonja will never fetch a big-term contract out of the air, for no film group will sign her up for a batch of pictures if she'll be a box-office draw for only one film.

NOVA PILBEAM AS LADY JANE GREY

Sixteen-year-old Nova Pilbeam has the most exacting part of her brief career in "Tudor Rose," and she carries it with a youthful grace and a maturity of artistry.

She is very much of a charming child when she is first seen, trying to master her Greek and Latin in her country home, and very much of a high and tragic lady when she faces the mob and the headman on Tower Hill.

"Tudor Rose" is the tale of the brief, and unhappy, career of Lady Jane Grey, as pretty and as sorrowful a victim of schemers as is to be found in any history book.

WITHIN THE TOWER

Robert Stevenson, the director, has dealt fairly faithfully with the known facts about Jane: To heighten his story he had to telescope time a little, to bring events together which were really separated by years, but, apart from the public execution of Lady Jane (she was really executed inside the Tower and out of sight of the mob), he has done no wrong.

And his picture is sincere and enjoyable, an imaginative reconstruction of Tudor times and manners to be compared with "The Private Life of Henry VIII."

This is one of the few films for which no imagination, no matter how far stretched,

A young attorney, taking his first case, had been retained by a farmer to prosecute a railway company for losing a shipment of 24 pigs.

He wanted to impress the jury with the magnitude of the injury. "Twenty-four pigs, gentlemen. Twenty-four; twice the number in the jury box."

All defendants were formally remanded for one week bail of $2,500 each was allowed.

At yesterday's sitting, Revenue Officer Grimmit appeared for the prosecution and intimated that Detective Inspector A.E. Carey would be prosecuting the case at the next hearing.

Mr. S. Ng Quinn represented Cheung Kam-ming and Lo Shing.

Wong Han, unemployed, was charged before Mr. S. F. He was convicted and fined $450 or, in default, three months' hard labour. Wong Kiu, an employee of the Ng Yung restaurant, who was also charged, was convicted on the last charge, and fined $300, in default, three months' hard labour.

Appearing for the defendants, Mr. C. Y. Kwan pleaded guilty on behalf of the first defendant and not guilty for the second.

Revenue Officer Grimmit prosecuted. He stated that the address was raided by Revenue Officer Ward and a party of revenue officers at 9.30 a.m. on June 1. There were several smokers on the floor, who stated they bought their opium and pills from the first defendant. Second defendant was seen to open a drawer and attempt to take a packet of pills.

A fine of $2,000 or in default, eight months' hard labour was imposed by Mr. S. F. Balfour at the Central Magistracy yesterday on Li So, 21 unemployed, who was convicted on a charge of possession of 180 tals of raw opium.

Defendant was arrested in Connaught Road West. The opium was hidden under some metal fittings in a basket. Defendant was described as a professional smuggler, having shops in Macao and Hong Kong.

POLICEMAN'S COMPLICITY IN CRIME

SHANTUNG CONSTABLE'S LAPSE

A police constable of the Police Training School Mong Kok yesterday faced Mr. Q. A. A. Macfadyen at the Kowloon Magistracy on serious charges relating to a theft of a safe, money and jewellery, breach of discipline as an officer of the law, and larceny by public servant.

The accused Chang Wen Yu, 26, police constable No. N. 265, of the Police Training School a native of Wei Hai Wei, Shantung, was remanded till Friday.

Detective Inspector A. H. Elston appeared for the prosecution.

It will be recalled that on Monday Chan Chong 27, described as a cook of No. 34 Temple Street, second floor and Wong Sang, 21, unemployed hawk, of No. 76 Woo Sung Street, first floor were charged with the theft of a safe, money and jewellery from No. 840 Nathan Road on June 1.

Yesterday the Shantung constable faced a similar charge of theft with these two men and "others not in custody."

The contents of the safe were said to include: $30 in Hong Kong currency, a pair of gold bangles, two gold rings, two pairs of gold earrings, eight child's gold mounted bangles and two silver Hong Kong dollars, the property of Tong Yik Sing.

Charge No. 2 against the constable was larceny by public servant "being a police constable in the Hong Kong Police Force did steal," while the final charge related to breach of discipline "for neglecting his duty by leaving his post without authority."

The three accused will appear together on Friday morning.

CHILD ENTICED AWAY

A further week's formal remand was granted by Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday in the case in which an earth-cowling, Lau Nam, 36, is charged with enticing a child named Yeung S. K. ping, aged 6 years "with intent to deprive the father Yeung Shek, of his child at Au Piu Lung on May 4. Inspector A. M. Elston said the police were making efforts to locate the child.

POTS OF PALMS

"There have been quite a number of these thefts recently," stated Det-Sergt. Guild at the Central Police Court yesterday when Lai Chuen, 29, and Li Choi, 27, both unemployed, pleaded guilty before Mr. Balfour to stealing two pots of palms from a flat in May Road. First defendant was arrested in Pottinger Street near Wellington Street carrying the plants and took the detectives to find the second defendant. The plants had apparently been torn from the pots. Two weeks' hard labour each was imposed.

EVADING PAYMENT

Cheung Wah, 20, unemployed, and a juvenile appeared before Mr. Balfour at the Central Magistracy yesterday charged with attempting to travel on the Yau-mat ferry launch Man Tak without paying their fares. The juvenile pleaded that he did not have enough money. Ticket Inspector Black stated that just as the vessel was about to leave they jumped from the wharf to the ferry. This was a common practice, especially with young newspaper hawkers. The accused were remanded until to-day for enquiries. The youth is to appear in the Juvenile Court. Wah was remanded in custody.

MUI-TSUI

Hau Kam-ol, 47 married woman, residing at Nos. 167-169 Queen's Road West, second floor, appeared before Mr. W. Schofield, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, charged on three counts of keeping three unregistered multi-tals Li Ki, aged 16 years, Lau Ming, aged nine years, and Cheung Kwai-lan, aged 14 years. Mr. F. I. Zimmerman appeared on behalf of defendant and asked for a week's formal remand, which was granted. Defendant was allowed bail in $750.

DOG'S OWNERSHIPS NOT PROVED

SUMMONS DISMISSED

Mr. E. D. Evans of the Royal Observatory, Kowloon was yesterday summoned before Mr. E. Himsforth with allowing a black scotch terrier dog (labrador) in Chatham Road near Carnarvon Rd. without a muzzle at 9.30 a.m. on May 21. Mr. Evans pleaded "not guilty."

An Indian Constable, B. 241 in evidence said that he followed a dog from Chatham Road near Carnarvon Road, along Granville Road, to Nathan Road, then up the Observatory Path. A European lady led him from one house to another claiming that the dog did not belong to her. Another lady came to the door and told him to "get out." He reported the matter to the Water Police.

The next day witness together with the Officer in Charge of Water Police Station and a European Sergeant went to the Observatory but the owner of the dog could not be found. However witness recognised the animal and pointed it out.

Mr. Evans submitted that it was extremely difficult for the constable to have kept the dog in sight for a distance of about a quarter of a mile. There was a dog owned by some people who resided on the east side of the hill, which was similar to his dog. The constable could easily have mistaken one animal for the other. Since defendant's last appearance before the court on a similar summons, he had given strict orders for his dog to be muzzled during daylight hours.

In answer to the Bench, Mr. Evans could not say whether his animal was muzzled on the day in question, but he was "fairly confident" that it was.

In dismissing the summons, the Magistrate said that he held the Balfour, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, Ng Fui-lan, 21, a clerk formerly employed at the Franklin Laboratory, was sentenced to six weeks' hard labour on a charge of embezzlement of $100 from his employers. Defendant was remanded from last week to find a surety, but was unable to do so. The complainant was Mr. Glen Allen, Detective Sergeant Mann prosecuted.

BOUND OVER

Pun Yuen, 21, unemployed, who stole an opium pipe from 554 Queen's Road West, was bound over when he pleaded guilty before Mr. Balfour at the Central Magistracy yesterday. Det-Sergt. D. Mann stated that at 10 p.m. on June 7 the defendant went to the complainant's house and asked for some opium and was refused. When the latter's back was turned he stole an opium pipe from the bed.

BANISHEES

Three unemployed men who pleaded guilty before Mr. S. F. Balfour, at the Central Magistracy yesterday, to having returned from banishment before the expiration of their terms were sentenced to varying terms of imprisonment. Chiu Yau, 48 years, was sentenced to twelve months' hard labour and Ng Sau-lam, aged 22 years, and Li Hung alias Li On 22 years, were each sentenced to nine months' hard labour. They were arrested in the Central district.

SLY BROTHEL

For keeping a brothel on the second floor of 8 Tun Woo Lane, a widow, Luk Fook-cho, 35, was fined $30, or, in default, three weeks' imprisonment by Mr. Balfour at the Central Magistracy yesterday. On a similar charge relating to the first floor of 198 Wellington Street, Chan Sam, 33, was absent and her bail of $30 was estreated. Sub-Inspector T. K. Whelan prosecuted.

ROBBERY AND PIRACY

CASES REMANDED

Intimation was given by the prosecution yesterday at the Kowloon Magistracy that two further arrests had been made by the police in connection with an armed robbery on board junk No. T5903H, when 50 sacks of rice and two sacks of yellow beans amongst a quantity of clothing were stolen on May 29 in the vicinity of Sau Shi Mun.

Two men already apprehended for the alleged complicity in the robbery, Tang Cheung, 31, unemployed seaman, and Lau Mun, 47, unemployed seaman, were brought before Mr. E. Himsforth and remanded for a week.

Detective Sergeant Davies in applying for the remand said that an identification parade was being held in connection with the latest arrests.

The robbers were alleged to have been armed with revolvers, a rifle and knives when they boarded the junk and made off with their spoils.

PIRACY CASE REMANDED

Chan Fat, 30, unemployed charged in connection with the piracy on board an unlicensed junk in British Waters outside Lysemun Pass on May 31, was remanded for 48 hours on the application of Det. Sergt. Davies for the prosecution. Three men have already made an appearance before Mr. E. Himsforth on a similar charge and the fourth will be tried together.

evidence connecting the two animals to be weak. The only evidence before the court was that "an animal" was seen to go up Observatory Path, whose ownership had not been indisputably established.

BAG SNATCHING EPIDEMIC

BIRCHING ORDERED

"There seems to be an epidemic of this type of theft," said Mr. E. Himsforth at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday in sentencing Lam Hung, 18, a Hong Kong born boy to two months' imprisonment for stealing a handbag from a married woman in Soy Street near Pak Ho Street, Shamshui-po on Monday. Accused was also ordered to receive 12 strokes of the birch.

Detective Sergeant Ellis said that the complainant Ho Yin Fan, was walking along the road when defendant came up from behind and snatched her bag away. He ran down Soy Street and along Yuen Po Hung Street, towards Shan Tung Street. A witness named Mok Yu San saw the accused being pursued by complainant, and joined in the chase. Accused was finally arrested in Shan Tung Street, where the bag containing $36.55 was found intact.

The Magistrate (to accused): You have been here long enough to know that we do not allow this sort of thing.

"There seems to be an epidemic of this type of theft," said the Magistrate in imposing sentence as stated above. Mr. Mok Yu San was congratulated for his work in arresting the accused.

ANOTHER CASE

A remanded case was continued before Mr. E. Himsforth yesterday when Mrs. Berginia Baes of No. 4 Lion Road, through a Spanish interpreter corroborated evidence given the day before yesterday regarding theft of her hand bag while she was walking along Prince Edward Road.

Tang Shek, 27, the accused was sentenced to two months' imprisonment. Mr. D. Gifford who arrested the accused was thanked by the Bench for his public spirited action.

CARELESS DRIVING

TAXI DRIVER FINED

Pau Shing-ting, driver of taxi No. 110 was fined $25 at the Central Magistracy yesterday, when he admitted a summons brought against him for driving without due care and caution on the Repulse Bay Road on May 29. Defendant had a previous conviction for speeding in 1932.

Traffic Inspector C. F. Alexander appeared on behalf of the Police.

Traffic Sergt. M. Clark stated that Inspector Alexander, Sergt. Fryer and himself were on flying squad patrol. The defendant took a left hand bend absolutely on the wrong side of the road at a speed of between 35 and 40 miles an hour.

Continuing witness remarked that he and his companions saw defendant through the trees before he approached the bend and if they had been at the corner, there would have been a collision.

For failing to report an accident, Ip Lo-lee, driver of car No. 1251, was fined $15.

Traffic Sergeant G. Youe stated that the car collided with car No. 2551 at the junction of Pottinger Street and Des Voeux Road Central causing slight damage to both mudguards.

URBAN COUNCIL

Yesterday's Meeting

Only formal business was done at the fortnightly meeting of the Urban Council yesterday when Mr. C. Champkin took his seat.

Mr. Champkin, who will fill the place of Mr. L. C. F. Bellamy while he is on leave, will also serve on the select committees for cemeteries, wells and pools.

It was announced that as the date for the next meeting was the King's birthday, June 23, the meeting would be adjourned to June 25. Twelve applications for licences were refused on bloc.

Those present were:—Mr. R. R. Todd (Chairman), Dr. A. R. Wellington (Vice-Chairman), Mr. A. G. W. Tickle (Director of Public Works), Mr. W. J. Carrie (Secretary for Chinese Affairs), Mr. T. H. King (Inspector General of Police), Mr. F. C. Hall, Dr. R. A. de Castro Basso, Dr. Li Shu-fan, Mr. A. el Arculli, Dr. S. N. Chau, Mr. W. N. T. Tam, Mr. B. Wong Tape, Mr. C. Champkin, Mr. C. J. Roe (Secretary) and Mr. Im Ping-teung (Assistant Secretary).

AVIATORS SAFE

Forced Down By "Dirty Weather"

Anxiety felt for the two Filipino fliers at their non-appearance at Hanoi yesterday was allayed when word was received from them to the effect that they had been held up and forced down, finally, by bad weather and have now reached Hanoi.

The two fliers, F. Arnaiz and J. Calvo left Hong Kong on Monday at about 10.50 a.m. and was expected to cover the distance to Hanoi in about seven hours' time. Eight hours passed without word of their whereabouts and although Hanoi waited there was no sign of the aviators.

Things were righted when a message from them to the Philippines "Herald" cleared up the mystery.

MADE FREEMAN UNDER CEILING HE PAINTED

Glasgow. A quarter of a century ago a young Scots painter, Willie Smith, stood on a ladder in the ceremonial banquet hall of the City Chambers in Glasgow and painted the magnificent carvings on the ceiling.

To-day that same man, now the Hon. W. Forgan Smith, Premier of Queensland, stood in the same Chambers and received the freedom of the city of Glasgow.

WORKED HIS WAY UP

Later in the same banquet hall he was entertained by the Lord Provost and Corporation.

In the intervening twenty-five years Mr. Smith had gone to Australia and gradually worked his way up until, four years ago, he became Premier of the State of Queensland.

But he had not forgotten that earlier experience, for in his reply to the toast to himself, he recalled his days as a painter.

"One thing I can tell you, if you are interested in the gold standard," he said. "The gold on that figure you see up above is genuine double gilt. I know, for I put it there."

FATHER BYRNE'S TALK TO ROTARIANS

"DEATH KNEEL OF FREEDOM" IS TITLE

WEEKLY TIFFIN HELD

Speaker at the weekly tiffin of the Rotary Club at the Hong Kong Hotel roof garden yesterday was Father G. Byrne, S. J., who entertained members with one of his characteristic addresses embracing logic and philosophy, leavened with occasional touches of wit.

Visitors were Rotarians F. J. K. Vanderwal of Samarang, Java, C. T. Walkley of Orange, New Jersey and L. A. Falkner of Shanghai. Rev. J. G. H. Baker of Canton and Messrs. John C. Pool, H. H. Beddow, M. J. Abbott and R. Edwards of Hong Kong.

In bringing greetings from the Samarang Club and extending an invitation to members to visit the Club Rotarian Vanderwal, a former resident of Hong Kong, expressed his pleasure in seeing so many of the friends he had had in 1917.

The Chairman (Mr. W. N. Thomas) thanked members for electing him President of the Club and also expressed the thanks of the newly-elected directors.

FATHER BYRNE

Father Byrne said:—
I had selected as my original theme: "Some Forgotten Women." However, Professor Middleton Smith, whose persuasiveness is as dynamic as his engineering skill, hinted that, following immediately after Ladies' Day, it might be inappropriate to stray into a Happy Valley where daisies had faded and roses lost their bloom. I fell back on the "Death-Knell of Freedom." Association of ideas? Possibly! Though, let me hasten to say there was no concept of Ladies' Day and henpecked husbands being wedded concepts.

The freedom in my mind is not directly the fundamental maxim of Rousseau in his "Emile": "The first of all good things is not authority, but liberty." I am concerned about the noblest type of liberty—the freedom which is from within. The freedom which alone renders submission to authority ideal, so that without it obedience is animal acquiescence or the cowering of the slave.

The patriot enchained in prison may be a noble example of this freedom, while the tyrant who bound him may possess a slave mind.

There have always been sounders of the death-knell of freedom. On the whole, however, man has been little affected by the preaching under the caption "Determinism" or "Materialism" when they would persuade us, for example, that there was no free choice of a menu card item; that brain cells automatically wobbled "duck" and, thanks to a tuned system of efferent nerves, the tongue quacked it.

ROOT OF SOCIAL LIFE

Responsibility for our actions lies at the root of social life: it is assumed by the magistrate who fines the careless car-parker. It is accepted by the benevolent plutocrat who purs on reading the public testimony to his great-souled generosity.

Indeed, it is the idea of responsibility resting on freedom of choice, that clearly separates the bag-snatcher from the bone-snatcher and stigmatises the prison but not the kennel, whatever resemblances there may be between them. Man is noble because he is free.

Recently I have been comparing and contrasting a number of books by different writers as well as essays; all prominent men such as Whitehead, Einstein, MacMurray, Max Planck, Russell, various contributors to "Science To-day" planned by the late Sir J. Arthur Thomson. All philosophise, but with a different accent: all at times are concerned with the notion of freedom.

One conclusion forced on me is that a subtle attack is being made on the very notion of freedom. Perhaps one of the first intimations of the attack was a present made to me in a New York book-shop of a pamphlet "A Free Man's Worship," a reprint of a chapter in Bertrand Russell's "Mysticism and Logic." That was some years ago, but even though golden dollars and golden oranges may once have grown equally in the Californian orange-groves, one hardly expected free distributions in New York bookshops.

The title was attractive for one who believes in freedom, as I do.

But on reading the pamphlet I sighed with astonishment: can a keen mathematical mind conceive such fantasies, and why, on earth, does he write them. Here are a few lines:

UNYIELDING DESPAIR

"That man is the product of causes which had no provision of the end they were achieving; that his origin, his growth, his hopes and fears, his loves and beliefs, are but the outcome of accidental collocations of atoms; that no fire, no heroism, no intensity of thought and feeling, can preserve an individual life beyond the grave; that all the labour of ages, all the devotion all the inspiration, . . . of human genius, are destined to extinction in the vast death of the solar system, . . . are nearly so certain that no philosophy which rejects them can hope to stand. Only on the firm foundation of unyielding despair can the soul's habitation henceforth be safely built."

I think that you will admit that "Hong Kong Attractive For Tourists" and our new dam would be sorry endeavours, on the "firm foundation of unyielding despair." However I am not so concerned with the "Free Man's Worship" as the more so as the title is inappropriate for a writer who denies man's freedom. I am thinking much more of the B.B.C. and the possible chaos induced into the mind of the average man by the broadcasts of one enjoying the standing of Professor MacMurray of the London University; broadcasts now published in a volume entitled "Freedom in the Modern World." The title suggests a political outlook, as the "Modern" world is full of political problems of freedom. In fact it has nothing to do with politics. It is concerned with the internal freedom of which the most hen-pecked of husbands cannot be robbed in spite of his external attitude to the new trial pudding.

POWER OF BOOKS

Macaulay wrote: "a campaign cannot be directed by a debating society," a tolerably safe statement; books, however, may spread powder trains, and prepare the world for social explosions. Karl Marx's "Das Kapital" did so. The average radio listener retains little of the broadcast message; and professors' books are rarely best sellers. The mischief lies in the distribution of the unwholesome drug in cheap concoctions, in the sensational magazine and the peace-for-all pamphlet.

In slum districts of certain big cities are vile gin houses where they sell a "Penny-worth of All Sorts." A zinc counter slopes into a big barrel into which drains drops of beer, rum, whiskey, wines, of all descriptions.

For one penny the hapless child at the pavement may have a glass of this mixture—a "penny-worth of all sorts." Human purveyors can fall so low. But there is a worse concoction: it is the type calculated to kill within us the noblest spring of manhood—the appreciation of freedom and the use of God's richest nature.

I must content myself with a brief comment on one or two passages in "Freedom in the Modern World." After 170 pages of preparatory matter we reach the chapter "On Three Kinds Of Freedom." Professor MacMurray has the gift of a clear, flowing, persuasive style as the following passage shows:

SPONTANEOUS ACTS

"Anything is free when it acts spontaneously. To act spontaneously is to act from oneself, from within outwards, so that the action expresses the agent, and has its source wholly and simply in the agent. . . everything has a nature of its own, which nature is really its capacity for behaving in a way peculiar to itself. . . A stone falls freely to the ground; it doesn't rise freely from the ground; but it can be thrown upwards. Then it does not express its own nature, it is mastered by an external force and constrained

P. AND O. NEWS

APPOINTMENTS

Captain W. A. Corching at present in command of the "Rajputana" homeward bound from Japan and China, and due in London on the 19th June, is granted leave of absence as from the 25th June, and Captain H. Williams is appointed to command of the "Rajputana" from that date for a voyage.

Captain Williams until recently commanded the P. & O. Branch liner "Balranald," which, as already reported, has been sold for breaking up owing to the withdrawal of the Branch Line Service. Surgeon S. I. Weir joined the "Sirathnavar" for the passage to Australia, and to take his discharge at Melbourne.

Surgeon O. J. P. Bollen has been appointed surgeon in the "Ranchi" which sailed on the 22nd instant for China and Japan.

Surgeon R. Trevelyn-Jones is appointed to the "Naldera," sailing for Bombay and Japan on the 5th June. Mr. T. W. Vincent is transferred as Chief Engineer from the recently withdrawn Branch liner "Balranald" to the "Naldera." Miss I. Midlem is appointed Nursing Sister in the "Ranchi" now outward bound for Bombay and Japan.

to behave in a way which is unnatural to it."

Clear isn't it? But is it true? Was not Newton's discovery based on precisely the opposite statement; that, "of its own nature," it does not fall to the ground; if it fall there must be some force tugging at it; the force of gravity. The illustration to start us on the notion of free action is unhappy; it can only serve to cloud the issues; we start with a false conception. When the idea gets developed by the "penny-worth of all sorts" magazine, we are listening to first notes of the death-knell of freedom—of the genuine concept of human freedom.

Let us go back to the opening sentence: "anything is free when it acts spontaneously." The movements of the roots of a plant are spontaneous, so are my heart beats, and quite a number of impulsive actions. These acts are all determined; they are not free. Reflex actions so carefully studied by Pavlov and made the kernel of Behaviouristic teaching, sound indeed the death-knell of freedom, if they be accepted as the key which winds the "human machine."

The social consequences would be far-reaching. The Professor himself draws some of them—(though he expresses surprise that writers to the "Morning Post" should have linked his doctrine with Bolshevism). You may judge from the following passage:

MORAL LAW

"We often hear of people talking about obeying the moral law as if that meant being good or being moral. I am saying that this is a false idea of morality. There is no such thing as a moral law, and the idea of obedience has no place in morality. . . so far as my behaviour consists in obedience I am not free; I am in fact a slave to whomever and whatever I obey." Is it necessary to enlarge on the consequences of such doctrine? Is the obedient child the slave, not responsible for his behaviour? Is the disobedient one the most ideal master of himself?

One of the strange conclusions is that the secret of freedom lies in the capacity for friendship. Are we not justified in believing that the man-hater Diogenes was one of the freest in the Athenian market place when he gruffly told Alexander, proffering his favours, that the only favour he wanted was that Alexander should get out of his sunlight.

The wise father tries to impress on his children the sense of responsibility, daughter of freedom. Order, harmony, law, peace, happiness must rest on it. The welfare of the world calls for it. There is a danger in our midst: a subtle one but a real one; the danger of book magazine, or paper which writes Man with a capital M to make him part of Reality with a capital R, heading to progress with a capital P, but devoid of even a modestly small freedom. The vote of thanks was moved by Rotarian C.E. Terry.

A BIG CLAIM BY BOMBAY FIRM

Brings Action Against The Dollar Line

FRAUD ALLEGATIONS

A special jury was empanelled yesterday to hear a claim for $92,862.75 brought by Messrs. Rajaram Girdharilali and Company, of Bombay, against the Dollar Steamship Line. The claim was that a consignment of 370 bales of raw silk, on delivery, turned out to be cotton waste.

CARGO OF SILK FROM CANTON

The action was heard before the Acting Chief Justice (Mr. Justice Hayden) who was assisted by the following jury:—Messrs. W. A. Cornell (Foreman), T. A. Mitchell, Li Tse-fong, C. M. Gee, V. D. Sorby, H. H. H. Priestley, and J. D. Danby.

Mr. H. G. Sheldon, K.C., and Mr. Leo D'Almada, Jr., instructed by Mr. H. J. Armstrong, of Messrs. Deacons, appeared for plaintiff; defendant was represented by Mr. Eldon Potter, K.C., and Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Mr. G. S. Hugh-Jones, of Messrs. Wilkinson and Grist.

Mr. Sheldon said that the first dealing plaintiff firm had with a firm in Canton—the China Overseas Inter-Trading Co.—was in March, 1934 when a deal for 50 bales of raw silk was put through.

A further agreement with the same firm was contracted in July 1934 when 370 bales of raw silk were purchased; and to pay this a letter of credit was opened with the Mercantile Bank of India, in favour of the shippers for 75,000 rupees which was the purchase price of the cargo.

On July 7, 1934 the defendant agreed to ship this cargo to the plaintiffs in Bombay for the Canton firm and transshipment bills of lading were issued.

MONEY PAID

Mr. Chang of the Overseas Inter-Trading Co., then called on the manager of the Bank and presented a bill of exchange for 29,000 rupees, together with other documents. Mr. Ross, the manager passed them on to Mr. Swales of the Bills Department who looked through the bills carefully and on his confirmation the money was paid and the goods changed hands.

On July 21, Mr. Chang went to the Bank again and obtained the balance of the money, 45,000.

The goods were duly shipped by the President Van Buren and on arrival the plaintiffs were somewhat surprised to find that they contained nothing more than waste. On August 21 they had information that Mr. Chang had disappeared and the firm was no longer in existence.

That the whole business was a swindle from beginning to end and that the goods did not come down from Canton at all was the submission of Mr. Sheldon, who stated that it was only on the understanding that the goods came down from Canton in a river steamer that the Bank had paid out the money. This was proved by the mate's receipt and the advice of shipment.

NOT BY STEAMER

It was customary, Counsel continued, for notes parties in a case like this to produce relevant documents before the Court, but the defendants had failed to put forward a single scrap of paper to show how this cargo came to be shipped from Canton to Hong Kong. There was a strong suspicion that the cargo was not carried by a river steamer, and if the defendants could prove to the contrary, then it would be end of the case. If the defendants had mentioned in the bills of lading which they issued that the goods were not shipped by a river steamer, the Bank would never have paid over the money.

Mr. Ross had stated that he had never heard of a case before where valuable cargoes were not shipped by river steamers, and both he and Mr. Swales said they would never have negotiated the bills unless they were satisfied the goods were carried down in this manner.

Counsel then went on to submit that the cargo was not carried down from Canton to Hong Kong by a river steamer, and that the defendants had recklessly and carelessly mentioned in the bills of lading that the initial carrier was a river steamer.

"ACTUAL FRAUD"

"There is no allegation," continued Mr. Sheldon, "that the defendants deliberately stated anything which they knew to be untrue. The plaintiffs' allegation is simply this, that the defendants made out in the bills of lading that the goods were shipped by the steamer without any knowledge and did not care whether this was in fact the case. If the jury find that the defendants had an honest belief that the goods were shipped by river steamer and not by junk, then that is the end of the case."

Mr. Potter remarked that he would like Mr. Sheldon to make it clear what was the actual charge against his clients.

After reading authorities in support of his clients' case, Mr. Sheldon said that the charge was "actual fraud."

An accountant of the Mercantile Bank, Mr. J. R. Swales, in evidence said that upon receiving the documents from Chang he went to the Dollar Line to find out whether the documents were in order or not. There he was told they were in order and had been signed by Mr. Carpenter.

WAS JUNK USED?

He would never have paid the money if he knew that the initial carrier was a junk because, in this case, the goods would not have been under proper control.

In reply to Mr. Potter, witness said that silk variably came down by river steamers. He had never known an exception to that.

Mr. Potter: That is going to be my case. It is not a question of "customary" but "invariably" that silk was shipped by river steamers, and there is no exception to that. You saw Mr. Arndt when you went to the Dollar Steamship Line?

Witness: Yes.

All you asked him was to verify the signature of Mr. Carpenter?—Yes, Mr. Arndt said it was the signature of Mr. Carpenter.

Did you ask him on what particular steamer was the silk shipped from Canton to Hong Kong?—No.

If the Dollar Line had been informed by Chang of the name of the initial carrier they would have inevitably put it in the bills of lading?—No.

If the defendants had issued a bill of lading from Hong Kong to Bombay covering the cargo in question you would have paid that bill of lading at once?—No.

Mr. Ross said he would, why not you?—Because, the letter of credit calls for shipment from Canton.

I put it to you that you were entirely wrong because that letter of credit does not require shipment from Canton?—No.

Did you ask Chang for the name of the river steamer?—No, because I didn't think of it.

You were looking for a loophole to avoid payment?—Yes.

And you missed the loophole by not asking?—No, because even if the name of the steamer was not mentioned it did not necessarily mean we would refuse the bill.

Witness added that the reason why he was looking for a loophole was that he learned that the China Overseas Inter-Trading Co., was not of good standing.

The evidence of Mr. Shroff, a junior partner of the plaintiff firm, Mr. Annett, of Messrs. Griffiths and Co., of Canton, and Mr. J. B. Ross, which was taken on commission, was then read to the jury.

LEGAL ARGUMENT

Mr. Potter spent the afternoon arguing his submission that there was no case to go to the jury.

The hearing was adjourned to 10 a.m. to-day when Mr. Sheldon will continue the argument. The jury is not required until 2.30 p.m.

efficiently as we might? All of us have to admit now that rearmament of some sort is needed. We have to face up to the Europe
—and Africa—which the breakdown of the Disarmament Conference and of the League, the dominance of Governments which are quite unashamedly determined to have armies, air forces, and 100,000 men just as big and strong as they can possibly pay for, have brought into existence.
But if we have to spend millions on defence we do not want to spend merely for spending's sake.
We want to get full value for our money. It was largely to see that Britain should get full value for what she is spending that Sir Thomas Inskip was appointed "Coordinating Minister" so short a time ago.

His first speech to the Commons
since he was put into this position is not entirely reassuring. "We have to remember, of course, how short his experience of co-ordination actually is. But certainly what he said recently suggests not so much the sort of control of rival Service claims which might ensure that plans and equipment were as up-to-date and well linked as possible as an absorption in the business of securing war supplies—the sort of absorption which one might expect from a Minister of Munitions rather than a "coordinator" of Navy, Army, and Air Force.

Ominous as some of the plans for putting the country's industry and food supplies on a war footing may seem, this work is valuable and necessary enough. But we still need to be sure that the big problems of rearmament are being tackled in a far-seeing, impartial, and statesmanlike way. We want to know that there is a clear vision of the sort of Army that we need —is it to be a mainly mechanised force or are we to rely on the foot-slogging masses of 1914-18? We want to know just what the Navy is aiming at—above all whether the case for more battleships is really being examined without prejudice. We want, above all, to know what air defence can be made to amount to.

Has Sir Thomas Inskip been given power enough to deal forcibly and quickly with such questions? Or ought they to be examined, even while rearmament
proceeds, by some sort of Commission which could argue them out convincingly?

RUSSIAN ATTACK
ON GERMANY

Sequel To Collision Of Steamers

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)
Berlin, June 8.

The entire Russian Press conducts a prolonged attack against Germany, alleging that in the collision between the German steamer
"Pollux" and the Russian steamer
"Meshinsky" on May 4, the German vessel had steamed away, leaving the Russians to their fate. An investigation made by the German marine authorities, whose finding was just published,
shows that both vessels received only slight damages, dense fog prevailing at the time of the collision, and the German steamer
having waited for two whole hours trying to obtain wireless contact with the Russian steamer, which had continued its way to Leningrad. Only when all efforts to locate the whereabouts of the "Meshinsky" were fruitless, did the German steamer also continue its voyage, and both steamers reached their homeports safely.

LAD KILLED ON QUEEN MARY

HOPES FOR RECORD
VANISH

London, June 8.
A fatal accident was reported
aboard the British luxury liner,
Queen Mary, to-day.

Arthur Golding, a twenty-two-year-old lad, making his first trip
as an able seaman, was found unconscious and bleeding profusely on the deck. Apparently he had slipped and struck his head heavily.

He died subsequently.
Passengers were unaware of his death or his burial.

A moderate swell to-day induced a slight roll, somewhat destroying the earlier illusions of a luxurious hotel ashore.

There is no hope of a record on the present trip as the ship has not reached the speed attained on her outward voyage or the average speed of the Normandie's homeward passage. The Queen Mary covered 670 miles during the past twenty-three hours. She has encountered fog frequently.

MANY HURT

Disaster At Roumanian
Royal Review

("Hong Kong Daily Press" Special)
Bucharest, June 8.

A terrible disaster, causing loss of life and serious injuries occurred on Sunday, during the customary parade of the Youth Societies in connection with the anniversary of the return of King Carol.

The Grand Stand, where over 3,000 guests were assembled was directly opposite the Royal Stand, at where were King Carol himself,
the Czechoslovakian State President Benes and the Yugoslavian Regent Prince Paul, both of whom were in Bucharest to attend the ruler's conference, as well as the brother of the King, Prince Nicholas, Marie,
the Queen Dowager of Roumania,
numerous dignitaries of the Court,
and the entire Diplomatic Corps.

Just as the first group of Youth with flags flying and bands playing, the Grand Stand crashed with a deafening roar, in full view of all spectators of the Royal Stand and 30,000 others that were assembled in the grounds. A wild panic broke out, the crowd refusing to be calmed by reassuring statements.

King Carol and his brother, with great presence of mind, took the rescue work in their hands. The exact number of casualties is not yet known. An official statement says that the report of one News Agency which stated 24 were dead and over 400 wounded, is not true but that three are dead and about 80 wounded. It is, however, expected that the very many of those wounded consisting mostly of women and children, will not recover.

Although horror filled all those who had witnessed and heard the tragedy, the King ordered that the programme of the day be carried through, although in somewhat subdued form after the victims had been removed. The reason for this was that the crowd was still in such a state of agitation that it was unwise to break off.
When at last quiet had returned,
the programme was drawn to a close.

undergo large repairs. Each of the Kent class, to which she belongs, is being taken in hand in rotation to be modernized. Additional protection against aircraft is being given them, both in the form of increased armour and more anti-aircraft guns. Provision is also being made for them to carry three aircraft instead of one. The first of the class to be so treated, H.M.S. Cumberland, was commissioned for trials on
May 13. The second, H.M.S.
Suffolk, is in dockyard hands at Chatham, and will not be com-

CANTON CURRENCY
DISCUSSIONNanking Offer May Lead
To Stabilisation
BENEFIT TO HONG KONG

The premium on Hong Kong money in Canton opened this morning at 178 but there is every indication that before Saturday it will be down to 155.

The increase is merely a flash in the pan, it is understood, and is due to the following causes:—

Speculation, which the authorities are attempting to stop.
Rumours of war with Japan and civil war with the North.

The offer of Nanking to supply
Canton with the Shanghai big dollar, which they are prepared to back two to one if Canton will hand over her silver to Nanking.

Negotiations are still proceeding and it will be very interesting to hear the verdict of the Canton Commission which is still discussing the question.

If the verdict is in favour of the Shanghai dollar it will mean the stabilisation of China's currency as Kwang-tung and Kwangsi are the only two provinces not using Nanking coinage.

The stabilisation rate would probably be about 1/27/8 (Shanghai's rate) which would mean that Hong Kong money would be at a premium of only 10 per cent. in Canton instead of 70 odd per cent.
as at present.

This would have a tremendous effect on the purchasing power of Canton in foreign goods and would no doubt have a tremendous effect on trade with Hong Kong.

JAPANESE CONSUL WARNS GENERALS AT CANTON

M. VAN ZEELAND

VAN ZEELAND HAS ANOTHER TRY
Efforts To Form A Cabinet
BELGIAN POLITICS

(“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special)

Brussels, June 9.
Because M. Vandervelde, the Prime Minister, is unable to form a cabinet, M. Paul Van Zeeland, former Prime Minister who resigned last week, has accepted the King's offer to do so.

M. Vandervelde's efforts were unsuccessful because the Catholic party, which headed the poll, was unwilling to co-operate with the Socialists.

M. Van Zeeland has already begun negotiations with the various political parties.

It is stated in quarters near to the new Premier that he has already drawn up a programme which he will present to Parliament and that he is resolved to risk defeat sooner than make concessions to any party. It is therefore believed M. Van Zeeland will seek the co-operation of personalities belonging to the Socialist, Catholic and Liberal groups, who, however, will not be expressly mandated by their respective parties to represent them. Pending a conclusive issue to the new trade treaty negotiations now in course of progress with the object of replacing the current agreement that expires on July 31 between Germany and Brazil, the Governments signed a provisional treaty to the effect that until such time as the new treaty is drawn up, the old one will remain valid.

POLICE CHIEF GOES

Was Intimate Friend Of M. Chiappe

(“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special)

Paris, June 9.
The Director of the Paris Police, M. Guichard, who was an intimate friend of the former Prefect of Police and the present President of the Paris Municipal Council, M. Chiappe, has been placed on the retired list and has been replaced by Police Director M. Marchand, who in contradiction to his predecessor in office, is enjoying the full confidence of the Left Parties.

It is generally expected that the change in direction of the Paris police is only the first of many important changes in the personnel of the French administration that will be made by the new regime of the Popular Front.

The Socialist paper “Populaire” announces with satisfaction the retirement of M. Guichard who, it says, always showed indulgence to the Right Wing political leagues and demands that the Government annul the full annual salary, due to the retiring Prefect of Police, of 250,000 francs. Serious Repercussions Threatened

WANTS NO UNTOWARD INCIDENTS

Shanghai, June 9.

A warning by the Japanese Consul-General to General Chan Chai-tong is reported in a message from Canton received by the Japanese newsagency, Domei.

The message says that Chan has been warned against “indulging exciting popular bodies” against Japan and that the Consul declared that any untoward incidents involving Japanese would have serious repercussions.

The Consul added that the Japanese Government would maintain “strict neutrality in the dispute between Canton and Nanking.”

General Li Chung-jen has been similarly warned. Reuter.

COMMONS STATEMENT

London, June 9.

Signs of tension had recently appeared in the relations between the South-Western provinces of China and the Central Government, said Viscount Cranborne, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, during question time in the House of Commons to-day.

There seemed to be no sufficient reason at present to take an alarming view of the situation regarding smuggling in North China, he continued.

Conversations were being continued between the British Ambassadors at Tokyo and Nanking and the Chinese and Japanese Governments and the Japanese Government had sent an official of the Foreign Ministry to examine the situation.

“I understand that the Japanese garrison is being reinforced,” concluded Viscount Cranborne, “but in other respects the situation is unaltered.” Reuter.

FINANCIAL STRAIN

London, June 9.
In a long review of the North China smuggling incidents, “The Times” to-day emphasises the helplessness of “Chinese to face armed and ruthless smugglers who are increasing the loss to the Chinese customs.”

“The strain upon what is really China's financial mainstay is extremely serious,” says the newspaper.

“The general political significance of this indirect attack by Japan on the integrity of China, which she has pledged herself to respect, is obvious, and so is the unfair advantage which Japanese goods are obtaining over British and would continue to obtain even if the official tariff were lowered.”

“The hope remains,” concludes the article, “that the Japanese Government may change its methods.” Reuter.

CHIANG SPEAKS

Nanking, June 9.
The first official pronouncement upon the South-west situation by Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, the Central Government's leader, was made to-day.

He declared the Government would continue to adhere to its policy of safeguarding the nation's interests.

He admitted there had been differences between Nanking and Canton, but he believed the Kwangtung and Kwangsi leaders would not seize upon the Government's foreign policy as “an alibi to start a civil war,” nor proclaim their independence.

He emphasised that such questions as declaring war and negotiating peace rested with the Central authorities, not with a minority inspired with personal feelings.

Marshal Chiang announced that a plenary session of the Central Executive Committee would be held to discuss the situation, and he hoped Kwangsi and Kwangtung would attend in full force.

ENDANGERING PEACE

London, June 9.
“The Morning Post” declares that once again the politicians of Canton are endangering the peace of the Far East for no discoverable motive other than the satisfaction of a personal enmity.

Had these politicians been in office in Nanking, the “Morning Post” asserts, they would have done no better than Marshal Chiang Kai-shek in dealing with Japan.

“China's resistance to encroachment is impossible in China's present state,” it adds. “There is nothing necessarily unpatriotic about Marshal Chiang's willingness to come to terms with Japan. (Sun Yat-sen did it before him).” If they had the immediate welfare of China at heart the Cantonese, in his place, would do the same.

“Were General Chiang Kai-shek's personal position alone at stake we should have little regard for the manoeuvres of Nanking and Canton, but the danger is that the consequences of these manoeuvres will extend beyond the politicians responsible for them.”

“The Cantonese intransigence will revive the Japanese military junta's credit and enable it to urge its policy for rapid action in China.” Reuter.

PRIMATE PUZZLED

Activities Of Chinese Generals

London, June 9.
Speaking at the annual reunion of the Victoria Diocesan Association to-day, the Archbishop of Canterbury referred to the puzzling situation in China, saying it was a puzzle to which he found it impossible to discover a clue.

“What are the relations,” he asked, “between generals who roam and move about in a way which sometimes suggests tragedy and sometimes comedy as if they are stage armies?” Reuter.

HITLER'S PEACE PLAN REVIVED

(“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special)

Berlin, June 9.
After a long interruption, caused by the developments in East Africa, the diplomatic discussions of Hitler's peace proposals of March 31 are about to be resumed.

As preparation for these diplomatic negotiations, the British Government published on May 6 a collection of documents to inform the public about the events leading up to the termination of the Locarno Treaty and about the negotiations that followed, the German reoccupation of the demilitarised zone on March 7.

The German Government has now on its part issued a similar collection of documentary evidence bearing on the same theme.

It reproduces the texts of all important diplomatic documents, resolutions and speeches between 1919 and March 31 1936, and bears the title “Locarno: A collection of documents” compiled by Dr. Fritz Buerger on behalf of the German High School for Politics.

ROMANTIC LIFE ENDED

John Hays Hammond Is Dead

BOER WAR FIGURE

New York, June 9.

The death occurred at Gloucester, Massachusetts, to-day of Mr. John Hays Hammond, the American mining engineer who achieved world notoriety when he was arrested and sentenced to death after the Jameson raid in South Africa in 1896. He had been ill for a long time. Reuter.

Leader of an adventurous life, Mr. Hammond was born in San Francisco in 1855 and after graduating at Yale, studied mining in Saxony.

As a mining expert he travelled the world and towards the end of the 19th century found himself in South Africa where he was associated with Cecil Rhodes and the Barnato brothers.

One of the four leaders in the Transvaal reform movement, he was arrested by the Boers after the Jameson raid and on a charge of having instigated it, was sentenced to death.

The sentence was commuted to 15 years in prison but Mr. Hammond was released on payment of $25,000.

He was actively connected with the mining and other interests until his recent illness. One of his sons is John Hays Hammond junior, celebrated inventor.

MADRID STRIKE CONTINUES

Workers Seize Goods In Shops

(“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special)

Madrid, June 9.
The general tension here owing to the strike in the building trade, now in its second week, is still increasing.

In the suburb of Cuatro Caminos, the strikers forced their way into shops and “requisitioned” provisions, shoes and other articles.

In several restaurants the strikers refused to pay and suggested to the proprietors that they should submit the bills to the Anarcho-Syndicalist Union, of which the majority of the building trade workers are members.

In La Coruna, where the municipal workers and employees are striking, the authorities were forced to re-engage Catholic sisters for the local hospital as the lay nurses had joined the strikers.

In Madrid the police seized the depot of the revolutionaries where several hundred uniforms of the Guardia Civil were found.

The Left Radicals again committed several bomb outrages in the capital, causing considerable damage.

An announcement that the Municipal Government of Murcia, which is composed of members of the Popular Front, intends to pull down several churches and monasteries to make way for a boulevard, caused considerable excitement among the population of that city. Transocean News Service.

PARIS RESUMES WORK

Coal Strike To End To-day

BLUM'S PROPOSALS

Paris, June 9.

Although the strike is not yet totally over, mine-owners and miners have reached an agreement and the coal strike is expected to terminate to-morrow.

At the meeting of the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon the Prime Minister (M. Leon Blum) will submit legislation for collective labour contracts, a 40-hour week and pay during holidays for workers.

The proposals are expected to be carried by Thursday and presented to the Senate before the week-end.

“Le Matin” stated to-day that the new labour agreement is an experiment like the “New Deal” in America. Reuter.

PROVINCES OUT

(“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special)

Paris, June 9.

While general relaxation in the tense situation of the strike situation is noticeable in Paris and its environs, the strike movement in the provinces appears to be gaining further ground.

Negotiations opened between employers and workers of the various trade groups in the Metropolitan district is beginning to bear fruit. Thus agreement in principle was reached by workers and employers of the building trade. Certain questions however still remain to be settled, so that work probably will not be resumed before Wednesday or Thursday.

The personnel of the International Sleeping Car Company, likewise has been satisfied.

The strike in large department stores in Paris, however still continues, since the negotiations begun on Monday failed to produce results. To avoid conflict with employees, the banks declared themselves willing to meet the strikers' demands.

In the French capital, on the other hand, proclaimed a strike on Monday and occupied the premises.

The strike also extended to De Luxe Restaurants, on the Champs Elysees, where the employees suddenly refused to serve the guests and occupied the establishments. Several restaurants however opened again after an hour, the demands having been granted in the meantime.

In the provinces where the strike movement began several days later than in Paris, the strike is still gaining ground.

The total number of strikers in Northern France is estimated at 400,000, and several hundred factories are still occupied by strikers.

While Government quarters on Monday expressed confidence, that work would generally be resumed on Tuesday, it is now generally believed that the strike will hardly be terminated before the end of the week. Transocean News Service.

CITY STILL QUIET

Paris, June 9.

The capital still wears the appearance of an English Sunday in certain quarters where the big departmental stores are still occupied by the strikers. But after a meeting this afternoon between the representatives of employers and workers, over which the Minister of the Interior, M. Salengro, presided, it was stated that there was hope of an agreement being reached and work starting again to-morrow.

The end of the strike of petrol suppliers to-day resulted in an increase in street traffic, but the taxi drivers may strike to-morrow.

It appears that taxi drivers, shop-walkers and suchlike are not included in the newly-signed Labour Charter, which only covers industries. It is therefore possible that such trades may strike in order to secure their inclusion in the Charter.

WILL HE RESIGN?

LONDON, JUNE 9.

Mr. J. H. Thomas, former Secretary of State for the Colonies, who resigned following an inquiry into the leakage of budget secrets, announced to-day that he will speak in the House of Commons debate on the Tribunal report on Thursday.

So far neither he nor Sir Alfred Butt, both of whom were implicated in the leakage allegations, have indicated whether they intend to resign their seats in Parliament, though the Government whips are most anxious that this course be taken in order to spare the House embarrassment. Reuter.

International agreements for the purpose of a more severe punishment for narcotic smuggling.

Agreements for the extradition of narcotic smugglers.

VETERAN DIPLOMAT

(“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special)

The Hague, June 9.

The Netherlands Minister at Brussels, Dr. Tjarda van Starken-Borgh, who has been appointed Governor General of the Dutch East Indies, will take up his duties next September. He began his career in the diplomatic service in 1913.

Transocean News Service.

Owing to the absence of newspapers in the provinces news of the strike settlement in Paris has travelled slowly, and it is impossible yet to state how many have returned to work. Generally speaking the situation is still unaltered.

Meanwhile, 1,500 Dunkirk dockers have struck and are threatening to disrupt the cross-Channel service, while miners of du Nord and Pas de Calais have struck, as they decided to do on Saturday.

The miners' delegates are meeting the employers to-morrow at Douai when it is expected that a settlement will be reached. Reuter.

STAY-IN STRIKERS

Seven insurance company premises are now occupied by stay-in strikers bringing the total number of strikers to 10,000. Reuter.

CONVOY CRASHES INTO AMBUSH

Snipers Still Active In Palestine

MORE TROOPS COME

Jerusalem, June 9.

Another ambush occurred on the Jericho Road to-day. The road was barricaded and a convoy crashed through the obstruction under heavy fire from snipers.

When reinforcements arrived the snipers departed. The Arab editor of a newspaper at Jaffa has been arrested and taken to a concentration camp.

The second battalion of the Cheshire Regiment arrived to-day, bringing the strength of the garrison up to seven battalions.

Despite the alertness of the police and military, sniping and bombing continues, although with slight effect.

Last night a patrol of the North Lancashires repulsed an attempted ambush. Two bombs exploded at Bethlehem but no damage was done. Reuter.

NEW ROUTE FOR 'PLANES

Australian Service Changes

Melbourne, June 9.

Reorganisation of Australia's internal air services will be necessary as a result of the Australian Government's acceptance of the British plan.

The British scheme, which was at first rejected by Australia, is for a bi-weekly flying boat service on the Singapore-Darwin section of the England-Australia air route, to begin in August next year.

The flying boats will use a new route from Darwin across the Gulf of Carpentaria to Bowen, North Queensland, instead of the present service from Darwin to Cootamundra (New South Wales) via Charleville (Queensland).

The Cootamundra - Charleville section will probably be abolished and smaller machines used between Brisbane and Darwin. Reuter.

MORE IN WORK

UNEMPLOYED FIGURES

London, June 9.

A further marked decrease in the numbers of unemployed is shown in the return for May issued by the Labour Ministry to-night. The Ministry estimates that on May 25 the number of insured persons aged 16 to 64 in employment in Great Britain, exclusive of agricultural workers, was approximately 10,831,000. This was 118,000 more than on April 27 and 472,000 more than on May 20, 1935.

Agricultural workers became insured at the beginning of May, but statistics of the numbers of such workers in employment are not yet available.

On May 25 the numbers of registered unemployed were 1,705,042, comprising 1,397,755 wholly unemployed, 225,285 temporarily laid off, and 82,002 normally in casual employment. The total was 126,188 less than the month before and 339,710 less than a year ago. British Wireless.

GERMAN EFFORTS

(“Hong Kong Daily Press” Special)

Berlin, June 9.

That the great national campaign against unemployment continues to make rapid headway, is clearly proved by the official statistics issued on Monday by the Reich's Institute for Labour Service, showing that during the month of May the decrease in the number of unemployment was far greater than that in April.

The total drop is figured at 272,000, which brings the number of jobless at the end of May down to 1,491,201.

This means that the increase in unemployment during the winter of 1935-6 was more than overtaken by the present number of recorded unemployed, which is the least for many years past. Transocean News Service.

PROTEST IN BOWLS TOURNAMENT

MANILA RACING LAWS

All Shares Entitled To Vote

CHANGE IN RULES

Manila, June 6. By a unanimous vote the Philippine Racing Club, yesterday decided that there will be no non-voting shares in the organization's capital structure, states the "Manila Bulletin."

Every one of the 1,200,000 shares of the company's authorized capital, at the par value of P.1 per share, will now carry voting rights.

Previously, the voting rights had been confined to 200,000 shares, the balance of 1,000,000 shares being non-voting, but having the same status exactly as to earnings.

By the change which was made effective at yesterday's meeting, all who have previously subscribed to the non-voting shares automatically become voting shareholders.

It was disclosed at yesterday's meeting that since the news of the company's racing plans had spread throughout the Orient, brokers and others in Singapore, Shanghai, Hong Kong, Peking, and India, had put in requests for blocks of the Philippine Racing Club stock, to be disposed of to their clients abroad.

During a discussion of these requests from foreign brokers, it was brought out that the directors of the company prefer to raise the necessary capital within the Philippine Islands, as they feel that the enterprise should if possible pass its benefits to local shareholders.

FAVOURABLE CONDITIONS

Well conducted, modern horse racing tracks such as those in Singapore, China, India and elsewhere in the Far East have been so successful that the people in those localities are anxious for opportunities to make further investments in such tracks. It was explained at the meeting by a representative of one of the foreign brokers.

"Manila is looked upon as an ideal location for such a track, since all conditions are favourable and there is every reason to believe that it will be just as successful as the other tracks."

However, no action will be taken for the time being on the matter of disposing of any shares abroad, as the directors declare that at the present rate of subscription the entire issue will be taken up within a short time by subscribers in the Philippines.

THE CAPTAIN'S CRICKET CLUB

London, May 16.

I can now give further details about the Captain's Club, the formation of which I announced nearly three weeks ago, writes a correspondent.

Membership is confined to captains of England in official Test matches, to their eldest sons, and to a limited number of men "eminent in literature and competent in cricket."

All the captains eligible have already accepted membership with one exception. This is Sir Stanley Jackson who has not yet been approached, but will be invited to be the Club's first president.

Owing to the difficulty of collecting, all the captains—several are still playing for their counties—in one place at one time no date has yet been fixed for the inaugural dinner. But it will be held some time within the next month.

THE LITERARY PALADINS

Meanwhile the first three literary members have already been elected.

They are Mr. E. V. Lucas, Mr. John Drinkwater, and Mr. Clifford Bax.

Mr. Lucas, who is an authority on Hambleton, the cradle of cricket, is the best critic. He has been a keen follower of the game all his life.

Mr. John Drinkwater, who played for his school eleven at Oxford, is the greatest enthusiast, and Mr. Clifford Bax, who at one time used to run a side of his own, is the player.

The honour of original membership should now inspire a volume of cricket memoirs by "E. V." a Test match poem by Mr. Drinkwater, and a cricket drama with a body-line plot.

MAY BE LODGED BY TWO PLAYERS

Game Postponed With Scores Level

It is understood that F. J. Jones and A. Hyde Lay will file a protest against the condition of the Football Club green for their singles championship tie yesterday.

At the 19th head, the game was postponed with the players level at 18.

The tournament was advanced considerably yesterday when several games were played.

Interlopers clashed at the Civil Service green where A.M. Holland, popular Colony skip, met and defeated R. Basa, captain of the Colony on many occasions. Scores were 21 to 12 at the 20th head.

Holland recorded a four on 13th head, which drew him away from his opponent, who made plucky but unavailing efforts to draw level.

More consistent bowling by the Moonoon Bowling green skip won him the day.

EXCITING GAME

On the Craigengower green, L. H. Collier beat J. S. Logan by one shot in an exciting duel.

The game went to the 26th head before Collier registered one to give him the right to enter the next round, scores were 21 to 20.

H. Gittins, of the K.C.C. lost to J. E. Henson at the Police Recreation Club green 17 to 21, in an interesting contest. Henson was more consistent and laid some fine shots.

At Kowloon Docks C.G. Silva of the Club de Recreio defeated W. J. Geall (K.C.C.) 21 to nine. The game ended at the 21st head.

BRIGHT EASILY

On the Kowloon Cricket Club green, S. Bright secured an easy victory over S. Randle, the score being 21 to six. The match lasted 21 heads.

J. J. Basto beat T. Coleman at the Kowloon Bowling Green Club 21 shots to 16.

The game between J. G. Meyer and R. G. Craig which was to have been played at the Club de Recreio was postponed to Friday.

CHEMICAL FERTILIZERS PLANT

Government Control

INITIAL CAPITAL IS
FIXED AT $300,000

Hangchow: To check the enormous annual import of chemical fertilizers, which has drained large sums of money from China's coffers, the Chekiang and Kiangsu provincial authorities have jointly adopted a policy of Government control over the manufacture and distribution of chemical fertilizers.

As a result of a recent conference held in Shanghai between representatives of the two provinces, a Chemical Fertilizers Plant will be established to centralize the manufacture and distribution of the impregnating materials. The conference was attended by Mr. Ma Shou-cheng, representing the Chekiang government, and Messrs. Tseng Tsai-kuan, Li Meng-lin, Chang Tai-yi and Hu Tu-ming, representing the Kiangsu government.

According to tentative plans outlined at the conference, the plant will be a commercial enterprise under Government supervision. Its initial cost has been fixed at $300,000 to be borne equally by the China Agricultural Bank on behalf of Chekiang and the Farmers Bank on behalf of Kiangsu.

NO DEFINITE SITE

While the site of the plant has not yet been definitely fixed, experts suggest Hangchow, on the east Kiangsu coast, as the most suitable by reason of the large quantity of phosphorus produced there and its communication facilities.

The machinery of the plant as well as a large portion of raw materials for the manufacture of chemical fertilizers will be ordered from abroad. The fertilizers manufactured will be distributed and sold at reasonable prices in Chekiang, Kiangsu and the interior provinces. Farmers will be induced to use the home-made fertilizers.

The need for native manufacture of chemical fertilizers has long been felt by the Chekiang authorities in view of the tremendous annual import, which has been estimated at approximately 18,517,698 HK lbs. Statistics reveal that in 1929-30 the total import into Chekiang alone amounted to 500,000 piculs, valued at approximately $5,000,000.

A decision to establish a Chemical Fertilizers Plant was made by the Chekiang Provincial Government last May when a preparatory committee was organized.

But in view of the enormous financial and man power entailed the Chekiang authorities finally decided to seek assistance from Kiangsu who had a similar plan in mind.

After preliminary exchange of views, a conference was held recently in Shanghai, during which tentative plans for the joint establishment of such a plant were drawn up.

He was conveyed to the Kowloon Hospital where his condition is stated to be fairly serious.

KING'S CUP PROSPECTS

Large Entry Expected

London, May 22.

There is a strong possibility that Mrs. J. A. Mollison will fly in the King's Cup Air Race this year. She tells me she intends to enter if a suitable machine is available. Mrs. Mollison has not previously flown in the race.

This year's entry will be a large one. Among the newer types of machine now being prepared for the race, the most interesting are the British Aircraft Double Eagles, two of which will be entered. They have not so far been flown in public.

The Double Eagles are six-seater cabin monoplane of "mid-wing" design as opposed to low-wing and high-wing monoplane. We may expect in many new types, to see the wing's joined at the centre of the fuselage instead of at the top or bottom. Wind tunnel tests have shown that there is less resistance from the wings and fuselage in this design.

THE WAVE-OF-ALL WORK

London, May 20.

Is there anything that a "wave-length" cannot do? A story from Japan now declares that someone has perfected a method of smelting ores by means of "magnetic wavelengths"—on goes the wave and out comes the metal. Presumably it is another development of wireless wizardry; one sort of "wave" bears the throbbing note of the nightingale to home-keeping citizens, and another turns the crude and obstinate earth into slabs of pig-iron. Yet another (in this case "short wave-lengths," one believes) is said to cure rheumatism and other human ailments; and there must be others that would put a permanent wave in the flattest hair and impart a peachy bloom to the palest complexion. Then there are "death-rays" that will bring motor-cars and aeroplanes to a standstill (though they do not seem to do so in actual practice), and surely it ought to be comparatively easy to find a "life-ray" that would galvanise people out of a dead faint. Another neglected field for wave-lengths is fishing; if metal can be charmed out of presurely a trout could be rendered helpless and lured to the side of a stream? Poaching, too, could be practised by some adaptation of that highly popular "death-ray"—one flash from that silent and mischievous wave-length and down falls the stricken pheasant. The "wave-length," in short, is the universal wizard that wangles anything—or it would do if one could believe all the paragraphs that one reads one this subject.

GOLF

Miss Barton The Champion

THIRD TIME LUCKY

London, May 22.
The third time was lucky for Miss Pam Barton, and after being in the final for the last two years she came to her throne as Lady Champion yesterday at the comparatively mature age of 19. She beat Miss Bridget Newell by seven holes up and five to-day, and there could be no sort of doubt that the better golfer won.

It is odd how, after she had been trumpeted for two years as an infant phenomenon, nobody this year began by paying any attention to Miss Barton's chances. Yet she is unquestionably a better golfer than she has ever been before, though not yet so good as she will be. She has everything in her favour: great strength, a natural sense of rhythm, and a fine big swing—no wide, indeed, that I am inclined to think it too wide. She has a good head on her shoulders; she does not in golfing sense, throw good money after bad, and has a nice touch near the green. Moreover she has the true champion's gift of playing just well enough and of managing to win even when she is playing badly.

A VALIANT STRUGGLE

Sympathy is due to Miss Newell, who played her best game a little too early in this tournament and has been palpably struggling to recapture the inspiration of it during the last two days. She is perhaps a little too slap-dash, but she has a fine game in her and plays with fire and cheerfulness. She would have made a closer match of it earlier in the week, but that she could over beat Miss Barton over 18 holes I doubt. This was the time to do it, for the new champion, having once broken a spell, will take a prodigious deal of beating in a long match over a long course.

The first round was, if the truth be told, rather drab and dull till it was relieved by a spark of excitement at the last three holes. Both ladies drove well, with nothing in it in point of length, but after the tee shots there were a good many mistakes. What with International Matches and Qualifying Rounds both had been hard at it for more than a week and must have been feeling the effects.

For 18 holes I had the impression, with which others might not agree, that Miss Barton was wanting more chance than Miss Newell and ought to have got her nose well in front instead of having a bare lead. Then she carried off the last two holes and put things to rights.

The first two holes were halved, Miss Barton in each case holing a valuable putt. She held another to win the third, but she lost the fourth to a nice 4. Her real chance came (and was thrown away) at the eighth and ninth. Being one up she had two putts to win: on eighth and took three and she did exactly the same thing at the ninth. Fate and Miss Newell let her off at the 10th, but still a distinct chance of drawing away had obviously passed and she still had no more than her lead of one hole with three to go. "Gumby's" cheered us all up when we were feeling cold and depressed, for first Miss Barton and then Miss Newell holed a good putt for 4.

THE CRITICAL MOMENT

Then came the critical moment. Miss Newell hooked her second to the 17th and Miss Barton played a beauty close to the pin. Much the same happened at the home hole, and for the first time there was, in the language of the Brat Race, "daylight between the boats."

The scores—done, be it remembered, in a strong, cold, northerly wind—were:—

MISS BARTON
OUT:—3, 6, 4, 5, 4, 5, 4, 4, 6.
HOME:—6, 4, 5, 4, 4, 4, 4, 4.

MISS NEWELL
OUT:—3, 6, 5, 4, 6, 4, 5, 4, 6.
HOME:—6, 4, 5, 5, 4, 3, 4, 6, 5.

There was a large crowd in the afternoon, mostly composed of persons blissfully ignorant of the elements of the game of golf. They appeared to enjoy themselves, but in fact there was but one moment that held out promise of interesting things. After winning the first hole in 3 Miss Barton made her usual men of the second hole and took 7. She also lost the third, where Miss Newell played a very fine second from the rough.

Now was the time, or never. It turned out to be never. Miss Newell played the fourth very weakly and lost it, and from that point she was undone. She took scrambling 5's to her opponent's 4's and when Miss Barton took 4 to the short eighth Miss Newell missed a short putt and took 5. Miss Barton, out in 41, was six up at the end and the match moved drearily to its end at that point.

KICK MARKS AS "MEDALS" FOR FOOTBALLERS

"BRENTFORD'S OPPONENTS DID EVERYTHING BUT BITE"

(BY BRUCE HARRIS)

London, May 18.

Bearing what their manager styled "medals" on their bodies, the Brentford football team left Lisbon for home to-day. They are not anxious to go to Portugal again.

The manager, Mr. Harry Curtis, told me by telephone this afternoon that the description of yesterday's game as "the dirtiest he had ever seen" was perfectly correct.

"We had played two previous matches—one drawn and the other won—without any trouble," he said. "Yesterday our opponents were the Champion Sporting Club of Lisbon."

"I suppose they were extra keen on beating us. Anyway, they lost their heads and kicked out right and left. Bateman especially was marked by a deliberate piece of kicking."

"Under their rules, shoulder charging is not allowed. Instead, they did everything except bite, while the crowd roared their appreciation."

"Everything went off all right in the end. We won the match, and I am told that we have created a wonderful impression."

"Perhaps they just lost their heads. I don't think they really meant any harm, and we are all intact."

"But we are not sorry to leave."

far hole which gave the longest possible walk back to the club house. The scores were:—

MISS BARTON

OUT:—3, 7, 5, 4, 4, 4, 5, 4, 5.

HOME:—5, 4, 5, 4.

MISS NEWELL

OUT:—4, 6, 4, 6, 5, 5, 5, 5, 5.

HOME:—3, 4, 5, 5.
